

GCI EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Diana Mayhew

Tell us about your role in GCI.

I am currently transitioning to the U.S. Home Church coordinator position at the Home Office in Charlotte, North Carolina. I have worked as the Member and Donor Services Representative for the past 3.5 years. Now I am training the lovely Angie Hamrick who has stepped into that role. As the U.S. Home Church coordinator, I am the liaison between GCI members who do not attend a local congregation. These are people who still want to be a part of GCI through our online sermons and mailed updates.

What do you want people to know about working/serving here?

GCI is an amazing group of people from all over the world. (I was born in Bucharest, Romania, and came to the US in 2004.) Every day, they are trying to show and share God's will and good news—through leadership, cooperation, and excellence in their individual roles. I am proud to be a part of such a team and look forward to growing here and meeting many people in the coming years.

What excites you about this role?

Seeing God work in lives near and far excites me. I see a glimpse of what heaven will look like when everyone puts God first and works together for the good of others. Also, it excites me to be continually learning new things and meeting new people with diverse backgrounds.

What are the challenges?

It's a challenge to hear from people that have not found their personal relationship with God, Christ, Holy Spirit and feel unloved and without hope. I pray for them a lot.

What makes you a good fit?

I care about people. I like challenges and always try to find the best solution. I believe in, and thrive in a cooperative atmosphere that works together for the greater good.

What skills do you bring to the role?

I have extensive experience in finance, accounting, insurance, and customer service. I majored in international finance at the Romanian-American University. But above all, I have a heart that wants to help people and show Jesus' love daily through all my words, actions, and fulfillment of duties.

What is something people don't know about you?

My husband and I have two sons. I have learned what the Holy Spirit's voice sounds like within my being and know that listening to it (even when – and especially when – it's very hard) is the only thing that brings God's peace that surpasses all understanding. It's a true superpower we all have within us. Of course, some days I tend to listen more to my ego, but I'm learning and letting go of that voice.

How are you learning to be rooted in place?

When I can rest in knowing that this is where God has placed me and needs me at this time, feeling rooted comes naturally. But I am a perfectionist and like things to be organized and completed ahead of time. So, letting go of control and resting in knowing I am doing my best, is a hard lesson that I'm learning continually.

What else is important for our readers to know?

I want each person to know for themselves how truly loved they are. God loves us so much that he came down to feel pain and death to redeem each one of us. The only thing that we need to do is let go of ourselves and let him love us. Learning how to do that is a lifelong journey that can be hard, but it's also so beautiful! We just need to rest in knowing that no matter how long it takes, he will always be ready to welcome us fully because nothing – and I mean nothing – can ever separate us from this amazing, supernatural, perfect love.

I am passionate about equality, love and respect. I believe nobody should be judged on anything external, and we need to value people only by their fruits and how they treat others.
